6 Read Helen's e-mail about starting college. What is Helen mainly concerned about?

- a her studies    b her image

Hi Aidan,

Today is my last day in high school! In two months I'll be starting college at Stanford. I'm going to find somewhere to live next month, hopefully near the college, although I don't mind being near downtown instead. Will anyone want to share an apartment with me? There are lots of ads for roommates posted on the college website. I've written to a few, but I haven't had any replies yet.

I've promised myself that I'm going to have a new image. Most of my old clothes were bought on sale, and I'm not sure how fashionable they are any more. I'm going to study media, and I'll be taught by some famous journalists, so I want to look good. I'm going to wear lipstick and nail polish, and I'm going to change my hair. It'll be dyed red, or maybe black! I can't stand being blond anymore. I might even get a tattoo.

Most people don't know me at college, so this is a great time to be different. Rosa is going to study at Stanford with me, and she also wants a new style. She wants me to call her "Roz," too. Luckily, I like my name!

When are you starting college?

Love, Helen

HAY-ON-WYE

Hay-on-Wye is a small town in Wales, just on the border with England. It's surrounded by beautiful countryside. Today Hay is known as the "Town of Books."

The man who created this identity for the town and set up the first bookstore there is Richard Booth. He opened his first second-hand bookstore in 1961. He bought a lot of books from abroad. He thought that if you sell books from many different countries, customers will come from many different countries — and he was right. Today there are more than thirty bookstores in Hay-on-Wye.

Booth received a lot of publicity in 1977. He announced that Hay was an independent nation. He was the head of state, and his horse was the Prime Minister!

In the late 1970s Hay became the world's first official Book Town, and ten years later, in 1988, the first Hay Literary Festival was held. At first it took place in different town buildings, including the elementary school, but now it takes place just outside the town because it's too big! It's very successful. Today about 80,000 visitors attend every year, and some of the best known literary figures give talks. In 2001, former American President Bill Clinton was the star speaker.

16 Read the text above. Then write true or false. (10 points)

There is a town called Hay-on-Wye in England. false

- 1 Richard Booth opened a second-hand bookstore in Hay. _____
- 2 He exported books to many countries. _____
- 3 In 1977 he became the Culture Minister. _____
- 4 The Hay Literary Festival is usually held in a school. _____
- 5 A very famous politician spoke at the festival. _____
